THE ALFALFA WEEVIL AND ITS DESTRUCTIVE WORK IN UTAH

Inspected in Weber County by United States Government Entomologist, Who Says Barker's Lucern Patch in North Ogden, Two-foot High, Is the Best of All Weevil Inspected Farms Coming Under His Notice to Date—Natural Enemy of the Weevil Being Sought.

Ex-Mayor Glasman was agreeably surprised to have George L. Reeves call at his office yesterday and take an automobile ride to North Ogden to inspect the weevil pest of Weber county. Mr. Reeves is the government entomologist sent to Utah to study the weevil pest, and after wading through Joseph Barker's lucern patch averaging two feet high, and finding the neighboring lucern patches a barren stubble field, he expressed a wish to see the brush attachment to the spring-tooth harrow that had accomplished such splendid results. Mr. Barker had sent his spring harrow to Ogden Valley, where he has other lucern fields and Reeves was therefore taken to James Randall's ranch where he had been using a like brush attachment. Mr. Reeves stated that the brush attachment Mr. Barker had been using was a great deal like the brush attachment used by Mr. Hemmiltway in Salt Lake county. Mr. Randall, however, did not make his brush attachment until after Mr. Barker's lucern was six inches high, and he harrowed his lucern patch June 15 and 16, when the lucern was just starting to sprout. Mr. Reeves stated that his experience was that any kind of cultivation of the lucern field immediately after the first crop was beneficial to the crop and aided in the destruction of the weevil.

He said some farmers were getting excellent results by using the ordinary brush drag—just limbs from trees tied together so as to disturb the earth half an inch deep. Until he saw Mr. Barker's farm he thought the results had been obtained by the laying of four or five pieces of woven wire fencing on the ground and throwing an ordinary harrow on top of it and dragging it over the field. He said the woven wire would cut up the ground and accomplish almost the same result. Mr. Barker's appliance had accomplished, but when the woven wire is used, the earth should be soft and loose, otherwise the earth would first have to be harrowed.

Mr. Reeves says he saw a farmer who had taken two pieces of wood or iron, six to eight feet long, to which was attached common ordinary spikes in the center, making a sort of a comb which was placed back of a harrow with sufficient weight on it to chop the earth up fine. Both this comb and the woven wire scheme probably are cheaper than the Barker steel brush, but undoubtedly are harder on the horses and probably not as good as the steel brush fastened to a spring harrow.

Mr. Reeves is studying the weevil proposition at the present time with a view to destroying the weevil, and hopes to find a natural enemy of the weevil such as exists in Italy, the native home of the pest. A wasp has been imported which lays an egg in the weevil itself and as the egg develops the larva eats up the weevil. Quite a lot of the wasps have been imported and turned loose in Utah. Whether they will thrive here as they do in Italy remains yet to be seen. The government is also experimenting with a spray, which appears to be quite successful, but has not had sufficient trial and cannot as yet be recommended.

Mr. Reeves further stated that from what he could learn the cultivation of lucern, such as resulted from any of the methods above referred to, caused an increase of from 10 per cent to one-third of a crop. He said the farmer had his own remedy for destroying the weevil, while being handsomely repaid by an increased crop.

The above story is rewritten as the recollection of a running conversation with Mr. Reeves while talking with him on the trip.
A reporter met Mr. Reeves on his return from North Ogden and he said: "MR. BARKER'S FIELD IS ONE OF THE BEST EXAMPLES I have seen of what may be accomplished by the farmer who cultivates his alfalfa stubble after the first crop. The field which had been cultivated with the wire brush attachment is TWO FEET high while neighboring fields, which have not been dragged, are hardly sprouted."
